Opening Keynote Conversation

Josette Sheeran

President and CEO | Asia Society

Ambassador Josette Sheeran is an economic, security, and humanitarian leader with more than 25 years of experience in managing large-scale reforms and transforming multilateral organizations to be more effective and relevant. She is the seventh president and CEO of the Asia Society, a Rockefeller institution founded after World War II, with 14 centers in the U.S. and around the world. At the Asia Society, she is responsible for advancing the organization's global work in policy, public-private partnerships, economics, track 2 dialogues, women's leadership, culture, art, and education.

Sheeran is a former vice chair of the World Economic Forum (WEF), where she helped advance global initiatives encompassing global, regional, and industry agendas such as Grow Africa, which has attracted $10 billion to end hunger and malnutrition in Africa. From 2006-2011, she was Executive Director of the U.N. World Food Programme (WFP). Under her leadership, WFP launched transformational programs to reduce dependency on food aid, including Purchase for Progress. She increased WFP's donor base to more than 100 nations, and it became the first U.N. program to include the so-called BRIC countries and the Gulf States among its top 10 donors. Prior to this, Sheeran served as a U.S. diplomat and negotiator, including as U.S. Under Secretary of State for Economic, Business, and Agricultural Affairs, and Deputy U.S. Trade Representative, handling Asia, Africa, labor, environment, intellectual property, and trade capacity building portfolios.

She was a Fisher Fellow at the Harvard Kennedy School's Belfer Center in 2013. In 2011, Forbes named her the world's 30th most powerful woman; Foreign Policy listed her among its Twitterati 100 list. She was awarded the Commandeur de l'Ordre du Mérite Agricole from the French government; Grand Official Order of the 'Rio Branco,' Brazil's highest civilian award; The Huffington Post Game Changer Award; and Japan's Nigata International Food Award. Sheeran is also a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

The Center's multifaceted approach includes the International Studies Schools Network, a network of over 30 schools around the United States that systematically integrate a global focus within the curriculum; Global Learning Beyond School, which supports globalizing youth programs including afterschool and community programs; the Global Cities Education Network, a learning community of high performing Asian and North American urban school districts dedicated to solving common high priority problems of practice and policy; and China Learning Initiatives, which provide national leadership to support learning of Chinese language and culture.

Trained in both developmental psychology and education, Jackson is one of the nation's leading experts on secondary school education reform and adolescent development. Jackson directed the Carnegie Corporation's Task Force on the Education of Young Adolescents which produced the ground breaking report Turning Points: Educating Adolescents in the 21st Century, and co-authored the seminal follow-up blueprint Turning Points 2000, considered one of the most influential books on middle school reform. His most recent work is Educating for Global Competence: Preparing Our Youth to Engage the World.

Jackson holds a BA from the University of California at Berkeley, and MA and PhD in Education and Psychology from the University of Michigan.

Christopher Belisle

Executive Director of Corporate Relations | Asia Society

Christopher (Chris) M. Belisle is Executive Director of Corporate Relations at Asia Society in New York, NY. In this role, he oversees corporate engagement with companies across industries based in the U.S. and abroad, and works together with (12) regional offices based in Hong Kong, Houston, Los Angeles, Manila, Melbourne, Mumbai, San Francisco, Seoul, Sydney, Tokyo, Washington, DC and Zurich. He is the primary liaison between Asia Society and companies that engage in a broad range of activities led by Asia Society. He oversees The Global Corporate Network, Asia Society's corporate membership program, and leads the efforts and activities of the Business Council, Global Talent and Diversity Council and Rising Executives Network.

Chris is a seasoned development and fundraising professional with nearly 20 years of experience in corporate engagement and partnership development. Previously, Chris served as Director of Corporate Relations for The Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, DC. In this role, he led organization-wide corporate engagement across multiple geopolitical and thematic programs in their efforts to engage companies based in the U.S. and abroad. He also led large-scale event programming, including the annual Woodrow Wilson Awards Dinner. And before that, he directed corporate membership activities focused on the U.S. West Coast for a large trade association representing today's most innovative data-driven marketing companies.

Chris received his B.A. in International Affairs and Public Communications from American University located in Washington, DC. He lives in Manhattan with his husband, and enjoys exploring new restaurants and traveling as much as he can with family and friends.

Thank You

Global Talent & Diversity Council (GTDC)

GTDC is a members-driven working group that meets quarterly to 1) raises visibility of the importance of nurturing Asian talent and diversity in the business community world-wide, 2) acts as a go-to business resource to expose cutting-edge, innovative and applicable best practices and trends that achieve real, measurable outcomes in attracting, retaining and supporting Asian talent across the global business landscape, and 3) advises Asia Society and external stakeholders how they can best leverage their respective roles within the public arena as an advocate for inclusive Asian talent and diversity in the business community.
